

Amazon hits climate goal early by 7 years

IVAN PENN & ELI TAN
July 10

AMAZON ANNOUNCED ON Wednesday that effectively all of the electricity its operations used last year came from sources that did not produce greenhouse gas emissions. But some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient.

In its announcement, Amazon said it had reached its goal of 100% clean energy seven years ahead of schedule. The company said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target. The energy generated by those projects is equivalent to electricity consumed by the company's data centers, corporate buildings, grocery stores and fulfillment centers in 27 countries.

But because the solar and wind farms do not all directly power Amazon's operations — most of that energy is sent to electricity grids that serve many businesses and homes — some

ACHIEVING SUSTAINABILITY TARGETS

■ Amazon said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target

■ Some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient critics say that the company's calculations can create a misleading impression of its effect on the climate.

The clean energy projects Amazon has invested in can produce enough electricity to power the equivalent of 7.6 million US homes, the company said. Amazon aims to reach net-zero carbon emissions from all of its operations, including its delivery vans, planes and other means of transportation, by 2040. "We're really excited about, obviously, the goal that we set five years ago and reaching it seven years early," said Kara Hurst, vice president of worldwide sustainability at Amazon.

Amazon and other tech companies have said for years that they aim to eliminate the planet-warming effect of their operations. But those promises have been called into question recently by the industry's decisions to invest heavily in artificial intelligence, which consumes vast amounts of electricity through its use of data centers. NYT

HSBC revamps its investment banking unit

AMBEREEN CHOUDHURY, HARRY WILSON & MANUEL BAIGORRI
July 10

HSBC HOLDINGS IS revamping parts of its investment bank in a move that will make it look more like rivals such as Citigroup.

Executives in HSBC's global banking business will winnow their existing sector teams into five larger groups, according to a memo to staff seen by Bloomberg.

The move will allow bankers to work more efficiently and boost its focus on sectors involving innovation and sustainability, the memo shows. "The simplified structure means teams can operate with more agility and flexibility and positions us for growth," Adam Bagshaw and Matthew Ginsburg, co-heads of global banking, said in the memo to employees on Wednesday.

With the moves, HSBC is following in the footsteps of Citigroup, which also merged a bevy of its sector groups in recent years. That bank, for instance, created a super group focused on technology and communications companies, it has another one that covers health-care, consumer and retail firms, and it united its energy, power and chemicals teams into a new natural resources team in 2021.

HSBC will hold briefings in the coming days to update employees on the new structure, according to the memo. The company is also planning to host a town hall for all investment banking employees in September. BLOOMBERG

EV race: BMW pulls away from Mercedes and Audi

BLOOMBERG
July 10

BMW EXTENDED ITS lead over German rivals in the shift to electric vehicles with a jump in the second quarter as Mercedes-Benz and Audi struggled. Deliveries of BMW's battery-powered models such as the i4 and iX1 surged 22% to 107,933 units through June compared to a year ago, the company said on Wednesday. BMW said its attractive product portfolio offset a challenging market.

The results contrasted sharply with those of Mercedes-Benz Group, which said its wholesale deliveries of passenger EVs plummeted 25% to just 45,800 units. The carmaker cited weaker demand in major economies and heavy discounts in the EV market.

BMW is bucking the trend in Europe, where sales of battery-powered cars have flattened or diminished as a share of overall deliveries in recent months. After years of growth, demand for EVs has softened since governments began dialing back or halting financial incentives for purchases.

At Audi, EV deliveries in Q2 stayed flat at 41,000 units, while parent Volkswagen said that fully electric sales in Europe and the US declined 15% in the first half of this year. EV demand in China has been stronger, rising 45% in the same period. BMW is banking on EV sales after rolling out several new battery models, including the high-volume i4 sedan and more recently the iX2 crossover. REUTERS

Auto major to recall cars in US

GERMAN CARMAKER BMW is recalling more than 390,000 vehicles in the United States due to faulty airbag inflators that could potentially explode, the US National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said on Wednesday. An explosion of the inflator could cause sharp metal fragments to strike the driver or other car occupants, the regulator said. REUTERS

Volkswagen shares fall as China sales dip

VOLKSWAGEN SHARES SLIPPED on Wednesday after an overnight profit warning triggered in part by the possible closure of an Audi plant and a 3.8% drop in second quarter sales dented by China.

Deliveries in China were down by nearly 20% amid a wider decline in sales of combustion engine cars which still make up the majority of Volkswagen's line-up in the country.

As China heads steadily to an all-electric market, Volkswagen has said it will be raising its battery-powered offerings in coming years and prioritising profitability even as rival local carmakers slash prices up by 50%. REUTERS

Amazon hits climate goal early by 7 years

IVAN PENN & ELI TAN
July 10

AMAZON ANNOUNCED ON Wednesday that effectively all of the electricity its operations used last year came from sources that did not produce greenhouse gas emissions. But some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient.

In its announcement, Amazon said it had reached its goal of 100% clean energy seven years ahead of schedule. The company said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target. The energy generated by those projects is equivalent to electricity consumed by the company's data centers, corporate buildings, grocery stores and fulfillment centers in 27 countries.

But because the solar and wind farms do not all directly power Amazon's operations — most of that energy is sent to electricity grids that serve many businesses and homes — some

ACHIEVING SUSTAINABILITY TARGETS

■ Amazon said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target

■ Some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient

critics say that the company's calculations can create a misleading impression of its effect on the climate.

The clean energy projects Amazon has invested in can produce enough electricity to power the equivalent of 7.6 million US homes, the company said. Amazon aims to reach net-zero carbon emissions from all of its operations, including its delivery vans, planes and other means of transportation, by 2040. "We're really excited about, obviously, the goal that we set five years ago and reaching it seven years early," said Kara Hurst, vice president of worldwide sustainability at Amazon.

Amazon and other tech companies have said for years that they aim to eliminate the planet-warming effect of their operations. But those promises have been called into question recently by the industry's decisions to invest heavily in artificial intelligence, which consumes vast amounts of electricity through its use of data centers. NYT

HSBC revamps its investment banking unit

AMBEREEN CHOUDHURY, HARRY WILSON & MANUEL BAIGORRI
July 10

HSBC HOLDINGS IS revamping parts of its investment bank in a move that will make it look more like rivals such as Citigroup. Executives in HSBC's global banking business will winnow their existing sector teams into five larger groups, according to a memo to staff seen by Bloomberg.

The move will allow bankers to work more efficiently and boost its focus on sectors involving innovation and sustainability, the memo shows. "The simplified structure means teams can operate with more agility and flexibility and positions us for growth," Adam Bagshaw and Matthew Ginsburg, co-heads of global banking, said in the memo to employees on Wednesday.

With the moves, HSBC is following in the footsteps of Citigroup, which also merged a bevy of its sector groups in recent years. That bank, for instance, created a super group focused on technology and communications companies, it has another one that covers healthcare, consumer and retail firms, and it united its energy, power and chemicals teams into a new natural resources team in 2021.

HSBC will hold briefings in the coming days to update employees on the new structure, according to the memo. The company is also planning to host a town hall for all investment banking employees in September. BLOOMBERG

EV race: BMW pulls away from Mercedes and Audi

BLOOMBERG
July 10

BMW EXTENDED ITS lead over German rivals in the shift to electric vehicles with a jump in the second quarter as Mercedes-Benz and Audi struggled. Deliveries of BMW's battery-powered models such as the i4 and iX1 surged 22% to 107,933 units through June compared to a year ago, the company said on Wednesday. BMW said its attractive product portfolio offset a challenging market.

The results contrasted sharply with those of Mercedes-Benz Group, which said its wholesale deliveries of passenger EVs plummeted 25% to just 45,800 units. The carmaker cited weaker demand in major economies and heavy discounts in the EV market.

BMW is bucking the trend in Europe, where sales of battery-powered cars have flattened or diminished as a share of overall deliveries in recent months. After years of growth, demand for EVs has softened since governments began dialing back or halting financial incentives for purchases.

At Audi, EV deliveries in Q2 stayed flat at 41,000 units, while parent Volkswagen said that fully electric sales in Europe and the US declined 15% in the first half of this year. EV demand in China has been stronger, rising 45% in the same period. BMW is banking on EV sales after rolling out several new battery models, including the high-volume i4 sedan and more recently the iX2 crossover. REUTERS

Auto major to recall cars in US

GERMAN CARMAKER BMW is recalling more than 390,000 vehicles in the United States due to faulty airbag inflators that could potentially explode, the US National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said on Wednesday. An explosion of the inflator could cause sharp metal fragments to strike the driver or other car occupants, the regulator said. REUTERS

Volkswagen shares fall as China sales dip

VOLKSWAGEN SHARES SLIPPED on Wednesday after an overnight profit warning triggered in part by the possible closure of an Audi plant and a 3.8% drop in second quarter sales dented by China.

Deliveries in China were down by nearly 20% amid a wider decline in sales of combustion engine cars which still make up the majority of Volkswagen's line-up in the country.

As China heads speedily to an all-electric market, Volkswagen has said it will be raising its battery-powered offerings in coming years and prioritising profitability even as rival local carmakers slash prices up to 50%. REUTERS

China opens investigation into EU trade barriers

BLOOMBERG
 July 10

CHINA IS INVESTIGATING whether the European Union's spate of actions against the world's No 2 economy constitute an illegal barrier to free trade, as the two blocs edge step closer to a trade war.

The Ministry of Commerce said the Chinese probe would span a range of sectors, including rail, solar and wind power, and security equipment in a Wednesday statement. Those areas the EU has targeted in recent months with an array of new tools, which it says are designed to defend itself against Beijing's unfair practices.

If Beijing determines an EU measure to be illegal, Chinese officials could conduct bilateral talks, start a multilateral dispute settlement and take "other appropriate measures," according to the rules of the probe. In a separate document, the ministry said steps could include a recommendation to introduce "retaliatory measures."

Beijing's relationship with the EU has hit fresh lows in recent months, as the bloc brings its China policy closer to that of the US. American and European leaders have slammed Beijing for flooding their markets with a surge in cheap exports, and raised the alarm about strengthening economic security as tensions flare.

At the center of those strains with the EU are China's electric car exports, which Europe is worried threaten jobs in its own autos sector. The bloc last week set provisional tariffs as high as 37.6% against some car exports from China, after US President Joe Biden announced a new 100% tariff on such Chinese products.

Biden, NATO poised to unveil new Ukraine aid

US PRESIDENT JOE Biden and leaders of other NATO member states are poised to unveil new aid for war-ravaged Ukraine at a summit in Washington on Wednesday, after the US leader vowed to defend Kyiv against Russia's invasion.

Biden, 81, who has faced questions about his fitness for office after fumbling a June 27 debate, hopes the international event, surrounded by allied leaders he has spent his three years in office cultivating, will help him stage a comeback of sorts ahead of his November 5 reelection bid. NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg told reporters on Wednesday that NATO allies were expected to agree a "substantial" package for Ukraine and would expand other partnerships particularly in the Asia-Pacific region.

Stoltenberg said the package would involve a new NATO command for Ukraine to provide security assistance and training, and a long-term pledge to continue and sustain support for Kyiv. —REUTERS

Microsoft, Apple drop OpenAI board plans

DINA BASS & LEAH NYLEN
 July 10

MICROSOFT AND APPLE dropped plans to take board roles at OpenAI in a surprise decision that underscores growing regulatory scrutiny of Big Tech's influence over artificial intelligence.

Microsoft, which invested $1.3 billion in the ChatGPT creator, will withdraw from its observer role on the board, the company said in a letter to OpenAI on Tuesday, which was seen by Bloomberg News. Apple was due to take up a similar role, but an OpenAI spokesperson said the startup won't have board observers after Microsoft's departure. Regulators in the US and Europe had expressed concerns about Microsoft's sway over OpenAI, applying pressure on one of the world's most valuable companies to show that it's keeping the relationship at arm's length.

Microsoft has integrated OpenAI's services into its Windows and Copilot AI platforms and, like other big US tech companies, is banking on the new technology to help

Other regulators will likely feel similarly because the change doesn't alter Microsoft's close ties to the startup, analysts at Bloomberg Intelligence said in a note on Wednesday. —BLOOMBERG

China opens investigation into EU trade barriers

BLOOMBERG
July 10

CHINA IS INVESTIGATING whether the European Union's spate of actions against the world's No 2 economy constitute an illegal barrier to free trade, as the two blocs edge step closer to a trade war.

The Ministry of Commerce said the Chinese probe would span a range of sectors, including rail, solar and wind power, and security equipment in a Wednesday statement. Those areas the EU has targeted in recent months with an array of new tools, which it says are designed to defend itself against Beijing's unfair practices.

If Beijing determines an EU measure to be illegal, Chinese officials could conduct bilateral

■ The Ministry of Commerce said the Chinese probe would span a range of sectors, including rail, solar and wind power, and security equipment

■ If Beijing determines an EU measure to be illegal, it could conduct bilateral talks, start a multilateral dispute settlement and take appropriate measures talks, start a multilateral dispute settlement and take "other appropriate measures," according to the rules of the probe. In a separate document, the ministry said steps could include a recommendation to introduce "retaliatory measures."

Beijing's relationship with the EU has hit fresh lows in recent months, as the bloc brings its China policy closer to that of the US. American and European leaders have slammed Beijing for flooding their markets with a surge in cheap exports, and raised the alarm about strengthening economic security as tensions flare.

At the center of those strains with the EU are China's electric car exports, which Europe is worried threaten jobs in its own autos sector. The bloc last week set provisional tariffs as high as 37.6% against some car exports from China, after US President Joe Biden announced a new 100% tariff on such Chinese products.

Biden, NATO poised to unveil new Ukraine aid

US PRESIDENT JOE Biden and leaders of other NATO member states are poised to unveil new aid for war-ravaged Ukraine at a summit in Washington on Wednesday, after the US leader vowed to defend Kyiv against Russia's invasion.

Biden, 81, who has faced questions about his fitness for office after fumbling a June 27 debate, hopes the international event, surrounded by allied leaders he has spent his three years in office cultivating, will help him stage a comeback of sorts ahead of his November 5 reelection bid. NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg told reporters on Wednesday that NATO allies were expected to agree a "substantial" package for Ukraine and would expand other partnerships particularly in the Asia-Pacific region.

Stoltenberg said the package would involve a new NATO command for Ukraine to provide security assistance and training, and a long-term pledge to continue and sustain support for Kyiv. —REUTERS

Microsoft, Apple drop OpenAI board plans

DINA BASS & LEAH NYLEN
July 10

MICROSOFT AND APPLE dropped plans to take board roles at OpenAI in a surprise decision that underscores growing regulatory scrutiny of Big Tech's influence over artificial intelligence.

Microsoft, which invested $1.3 billion in the ChatGPT creator, will withdraw from its observer role on the board, the company said in a letter to OpenAI on Tuesday, which was seen by Bloomberg News. Apple was due to take up a similar role, but an OpenAI spokesperson said the startup won't have board observers after Microsoft's departure. Regulators in the US and Europe had expressed concerns about Microsoft's sway over OpenAI, applying pressure on one of the world's most valuable companies to show that it's keeping the relationship at arm's length.

Microsoft has integrated OpenAI's services into its Windows and Copilot AI platforms and, like other big US tech companies, is banking on the new technology to help drive growth. Still, the board resignation is unlikely to resolve the US Federal Trade Commission's concerns about Microsoft's partnership with OpenAI, a source familiar with the agency's thinking said.

Other regulators will likely feel similarly because the change doesn't alter Microsoft's close ties to the startup, analysts at Bloomberg Intelligence said in a note on Wednesday. —BLOOMBERG

Amazon hits climate goal early by 7 years

IVAN PENN & ELI TAN
July 10

AMAZON ANNOUNCED ON Wednesday that effectively all of the electricity its operations used last year came from sources that did not produce greenhouse gas emissions. But some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient.

In its announcement, Amazon said it had reached its goal of 100% clean energy seven years ahead of schedule. The company said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target. The energy generated by those projects is equivalent to electricity consumed by the company's data centers, corporate buildings, grocery stores and fulfillment centers in 27 countries.

But because the solar and wind farms do not all directly power Amazon's operations — most of that energy is sent to electricity grids that serve many businesses and homes — some

ACHIEVING SUSTAINABILITY TARGETS

■ Amazon said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target

■ Some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient

critics say that the company's calculations can create a misleading impression of its effect on the climate.

The clean energy projects Amazon has invested in can produce enough electricity to power the equivalent of 7.6 million US homes, the company said. Amazon aims to reach net-zero carbon emissions from all of its operations, including its delivery vans, planes and other means of transportation, by 2040. "We're really excited about, obviously, the goal that we set five years ago and reaching it seven years early," said Kara Hurst, vice president of worldwide sustainability at Amazon.

Amazon and other tech companies have said for years that they aim to eliminate the planet-warming effect of their operations. But those promises have been called into question recently by the industry's decisions to invest heavily in artificial intelligence, which consumes vast amounts of electricity through its use of data centers. NYT

HSBC revamps its investment banking unit

AMBEREEN CHOUDHURY, HARRY WILSON & MANUEL BAIGORRI
July 10

HSBC HOLDINGS IS revamping parts of its investment bank in a move that will make it look more like rivals such as Citigroup. Executives in HSBC's global banking business will winnow their existing sector teams into five larger groups, according to a memo to staff seen by Bloomberg.

The move will allow bankers to work more efficiently and boost its focus on sectors involving innovation and sustainability, the memo shows. "The simplified structure means teams can operate with more agility and flexibility and positions us for growth," Adam Bagshaw and Matthew Ginsburg, co-heads of global banking, said in the memo to employees on Wednesday.

With the moves, HSBC is following in the footsteps of Citigroup, which also merged a bevy of its sector groups in recent years. That bank, for instance, created a super group focused on technology and communications companies, it has another one that covers healthcare, consumer and retail firms, and it united its energy, power and chemicals teams into a new natural resources team in 2021.

HSBC will hold briefings in the coming days to update employees on the new structure, according to the memo. The company is also planning to host a town hall for all investment banking employees in September. BLOOMBERG

EV race: BMW pulls away from Mercedes and Audi

BLOOMBERG
July 10

BMW EXTENDED ITS lead over German rivals in the shift to electric vehicles with a jump in the second quarter as Mercedes-Benz and Audi struggled. Deliveries of BMW's battery-powered models such as the i4 and iX1 surged 22% to 107,933 units through June compared to a year ago, the company said on Wednesday. BMW said its attractive product portfolio offset a challenging market.

The results contrasted sharply with those of Mercedes-Benz Group, which said its wholesale deliveries of passenger EVs plummeted 25% to just 45,800 units. The carmaker cited weaker demand in major economies and heavy discounts in the EV market.

BMW is bucking the trend in Europe, where sales of battery-powered cars have flattened or diminished as a share of overall deliveries in recent months. After years of growth, demand for EVs has softened since governments began dialing back or halting financial incentives for purchases.

At Audi, EV deliveries in Q2 stayed flat at 41,000 units, while parent Volkswagen said that fully electric sales in Europe and the US declined 15% in the first half of this year. EV demand in China has been stronger, rising 45% in the same period. BMW is banking on EV sales after rolling out several new battery models, including the high-volume i4 sedan and more recently the iX2 crossover.

Auto major to recall cars in US

GERMAN CARMAKER BMW is recalling more than 390,000 vehicles in the United States due to faulty airbag inflators that could potentially explode, the US National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said on Wednesday. An explosion of the inflator could cause sharp metal fragments to strike the driver or other car occupants, the regulator said. — REUTERS

Volkswagen shares fall as China sales dip

VOLKSWAGEN SHARES SLIPPED on Wednesday after an overnight profit warning triggered in part by the possible closure of an Audi plant and a 3.8% drop in second quarter sales dented by China.

Deliveries in China were down by nearly 20% amid a wider decline in sales of combustion engine cars which still make up the majority of Volkswagen's line-up in the country.

As China heads speedily to an all-electric market, Volkswagen has said it will be raising its battery-powered offerings in coming years and prioritising profitability even as rival local carmakers slash prices up by 50%. REUTERS

China opens investigation into EU trade barriers

BLOOMBERG
July 10

CHINA IS INVESTIGATING whether the European Union's spate of actions against the world's No 2 economy constitute an illegal barrier to free trade, as the two blocs edge step closer to a trade war.

The Ministry of Commerce said the Chinese probe would span a range of sectors, including rail, solar and wind power, and security equipment in a Wednesday statement. Those are areas the EU has targeted in recent months with an array of new tools, which it says are designed to defend itself against Beijing's unfair practices.

If Beijing determines an EU measure to be illegal, Chinese officials could conduct bilateral talks, start a multilateral dispute settlement and take "other appropriate measures," according to the rules of the probe. In a separate document, the ministry said steps could include a recommendation to introduce "retaliatory measures."

Beijing's relationship with the EU has hit fresh lows in recent months, as the bloc brings its China policy closer to that of the US. American and European leaders have slammed Beijing for flooding their markets with a surge in cheap exports, and raised the alarm about strengthening economic security as tensions flare.

At the center of those strains with the EU are China's electric car exports, which Europe is worried threaten jobs in its own autos sector. The bloc last week set provisional tariffs as high as 37.6% against some car exports from China, after US President Joe Biden announced a new 100% tariff on such Chinese products.

Biden, NATO poised to unveil new Ukraine aid

US PRESIDENT JOE Biden and leaders of other NATO member states are poised to unveil new aid for war-ravaged Ukraine at a summit in Washington on Wednesday, after the US leader vowed to defend Kyiv against Russia's invasion.

Biden, 81, who has faced questions about his fitness for office after fumbling a June 27 debate, hopes the international event, surrounded by allied leaders he has spent his three years in office cultivating, will help him stage a comeback of sorts ahead of his November 5 reelection bid. NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg told reporters on Wednesday that NATO allies were expected to agree a "substantial" package for Ukraine and would expand other partnerships particularly in the Asia-Pacific region.

Stoltenberg said the package would involve a new NATO command for Ukraine to provide security assistance and training, and a long-term pledge to continue and sustain support for Kyiv. —REUTERS

Microsoft, Apple drop OpenAI board plans

DINA BASS & LEAH NYLEN
July 10

MICROSOFT AND APPLE dropped plans to take board roles at OpenAI in a surprise decision that underscores growing regulatory scrutiny of Big Tech's influence over artificial intelligence.

Microsoft, which invested $1.3 billion in the ChatGPT creator, will withdraw from its observer role on the board, the company said in a letter to OpenAI on Tuesday, which was seen by Bloomberg News. Apple was due to take up a similar role, but an OpenAI spokesperson said the startup won't have board observers after Microsoft's departure. Regulators in the US and Europe had expressed concerns about Microsoft's sway over OpenAI, applying pressure on one of the world's most valuable companies to show that it's keeping the relationship at arm's length.

Microsoft has integrated OpenAI's services into its Windows and Copilot AI platforms and, like other big US tech companies, is banking on the new technology to help

Other regulators will likely feel similarly because the change doesn't alter Microsoft's close ties to the startup, analysts at Bloomberg Intelligence said in a note on Wednesday. —BLOOMBERG

China opens investigation into EU trade barriers

BLOOMBERG
 July 10

CHINA IS INVESTIGATING whether the European Union's spate of actions against the world's No 2 economy constitute an illegal barrier to free trade, as the two blocs edge step closer to a trade war.

The Ministry of Commerce said the Chinese probe would span a range of sectors, including rail, solar and wind power, and security equipment in a Wednesday statement. Those are areas the EU has targeted in recent months with an array of new tools, which it says are designed to defend itself against Beijing's unfair practices.

If Beijing determines an EU measure to be illegal, Chinese officials could conduct bilateral talks, start a multilateral dispute settlement and take "other appropriate measures," according to the rules of the probe. In a separate document, the ministry said steps could include a recommendation to introduce "retaliatory measures."

Beijing's relationship with the EU has hit fresh lows in recent months, as the bloc brings its China policy closer to that of the US. American and European leaders have slammed Beijing for flooding their markets with a surge in cheap exports, and raised the alarm about strengthening economic security as tensions flare.

At the center of those strains with the EU are China's electric car exports, which Europe is worried threaten jobs in its own autos sector. The bloc last week set provisional tariffs as high as 37.6% against some car exports from China, after US President Joe Biden announced a new 100% tariff on such Chinese products.

Biden, NATO poised to unveil new Ukraine aid

US PRESIDENT JOE Biden and leaders of other NATO member states are poised to unveil new aid for war-ravaged Ukraine at a summit in Washington on Wednesday, after the US leader vowed to defend Kyiv against Russia's invasion.

Biden, 81, who has faced questions about his fitness for office after fumbling a June 27 debate, hopes the international event, surrounded by allied leaders he has spent his three years in office cultivating, will help him stage a comeback of sorts ahead of his November 5 reelection bid. NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg told reporters on Wednesday that NATO allies were expected to agree a "substantial" package for Ukraine and would expand other partnerships particularly in the Asia-Pacific region.

Stoltenberg said the package would involve a new NATO command for Ukraine to provide security assistance and training, and a long-term pledge to continue and sustain support for Kyiv. —REUTERS

Microsoft, Apple drop OpenAI board plans

DINA BASS & LEAH NYLEN
 July 10

MICROSOFT AND APPLE dropped plans to take board roles at OpenAI in a surprise decision that underscores growing regulatory scrutiny of Big Tech's influence over artificial intelligence.

Microsoft, which invested $1.3 billion in the ChatGPT creator, will withdraw from its observer role on the board, the company said in a letter to OpenAI on Tuesday, which was seen by Bloomberg News. Apple was due to take up a similar role, but an OpenAI spokesperson said the startup won't have board observers after Microsoft's departure. Regulators in the US and Europe had expressed concerns about Microsoft's sway over OpenAI, applying pressure on one of the world's most valuable companies to show that it's keeping the relationship at arm's length.

Microsoft has integrated OpenAI's services into its Windows and Copilot AI platforms and, like other big US tech companies, is banking on the new technology to help

Other regulators will likely feel similarly because the change doesn't alter Microsoft's close ties to the startup, analysts at Bloomberg Intelligence said in a note on Wednesday. —BLOOMBERG

Amazon hits climate goal early by 7 years

IVAN PENN & ELI TAN
July 10

AMAZON ANNOUNCED ON Wednesday that effectively all of the electricity its operations used last year came from sources that did not produce greenhouse gas emissions. But some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient.

In its announcement, Amazon said it had reached its goal of 100% clean energy seven years ahead of schedule. The company said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target. The energy generated by those projects is equivalent to electricity consumed by the company's data centers, corporate buildings, grocery stores and fulfillment centers in 27 countries.

But because the solar and wind farms do not all directly power Amazon's operations — most of that energy is sent to electricity grids that serve many businesses and homes — some

ACHIEVING SUSTAINABILITY TARGETS

■ Amazon said it invested billions of dollars in more than 500 solar and wind projects to achieve its target

■ Some experts have criticised the method the company uses to make that determination as being too lenient

critics say that the company's calculations can create a misleading impression of its effect on the climate.

The clean energy projects Amazon has invested in can produce enough electricity to power the equivalent of 7.6 million US homes, the company said. Amazon aims to reach net-zero carbon emissions from all of its operations, including its delivery vans, planes and other means of transportation, by 2040. "We're really excited about, obviously, the goal that we set five years ago and reaching it seven years early," said Kara Hurst, vice president of worldwide sustainability at Amazon.

Amazon and other tech companies have said for years that they aim to eliminate the planet-warming effect of their operations. But those promises have been called into question recently by the industry's decisions to invest heavily in artificial intelligence, which consumes vast amounts of electricity through its use of data centers. NYT of global banking, said in the memo to employees on Wednesday. With the moves, HSBC is following in the footsteps of Citigroup, which also merged a bevy of its sector groups in recent years. That bank, for instance, created a super group focused on technology and communications companies, it has another one that covers healthcare, consumer and retail firms, and it united its energy, power and chemicals teams into a new natural resources team in 2021.

HSBC will hold briefings in the coming days to update employees on the new structure, according to the memo. The company is also planning to host a town hall for all investment banking employees in September. BLOOMBERG

BLOOMBERG
July 10

BMW EXTENDED ITS lead over German rivals in the shift to electric vehicles with a jump in the second quarter as Mercedes-Benz and Audi struggled. Deliveries of BMW's battery-powered models such as the i4 and iX1 surged 22% to 107,933 units through June compared to a year ago, the company said on Wednesday. BMW said its attractive product portfolio offset a challenging market.

The results contrasted sharply with those of Mercedes-Benz Group, which said its wholesale deliveries of passenger EVs plummeted 25% to just 45,800 units. The carmaker cited weaker demand in major economies and heavy discounts in the EV market.

BMW is bucking the trend in Europe, where sales of battery-powered cars have flattened or diminished as a share of overall deliveries in recent months. After years of growth, demand for EVs has softened since governments began dialing back or halting financial incentives for purchases.

At Audi, EV deliveries in Q2 stayed flat at 41,000 units, while parent Volkswagen said that fully electric sales in Europe and the US declined 15% in the first half of this year. EV demand in China has been stronger, rising 45% in the same period. BMW is banking on EV sales after rolling out several new battery models, including the high-volume i4 sedan and more recently the iX2 crossover. REUTERS

Auto major to recall cars in US

GERMAN CARMAKER BMW is recalling more than 390,000 vehicles in the United States due to faulty airbag inflators that could potentially explode, the US National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said on Wednesday. An explosion of the inflator could cause sharp metal fragments to strike the driver or other car occupants, the regulator said. REUTERS

Volkswagen shares fall as China sales dip

VOLKSWAGEN SHARES SLIPPED on Wednesday after an overnight profit warning triggered in part by the possible closure of an Audi plant and a 3.8% drop in second quarter sales dented by China.

Deliveries in China were down by nearly 20% amid a wider decline in sales of combustion engine cars which still make up the majority of Volkswagen's line-up in the country.

As China heads speedily to an all-electric market, Volkswagen has said it will be raising its battery-powered offerings in coming years and prioritising profitability even as rival local carmakers slash prices up to 50%. REUTERS
